TRAITORS AT LARGE.

The fact is indisputably circulated that Jefferson Davis, thus far in his visit at the North, has kept quiet and made no public exhibition of himself. A different course would not only prove him defiant of public opinion and devoid of shame, but would be most manifest folly. It is hard for thousands of men, whom he is every day liable to meet, to permit him to pass from their reach without laying violent hands on him. That he has even thus long remained in safety in a Northern State is a proof of the unprecedented forbearance of the people whom he has outraged to an almost intolerable degree both in his public treason to their government and in subjecting their relatives and compatriots to the lingering tortures of cruelty and starvation. If Mr. Davis was under the necessity of making such a journey through any other country, his only safety would be in retaining the veil in which he was captured and making the quickest dispatch under cover of night.

A forcible comment on his release, is the fact that the mob who broke up a Union Convention in Memphis, the other day, cheered their assault on the delegates with shouts for Jeff. Davis. Another comment is, the declaration of Breckenridge that, on Davis' release, he should at once return from exile to the United States, thus showing that he understood that act to mean nothing less than a proclamation of impunity to all who had been involved in the treason.

It is evident that, under the present administration, no punishment is to be inflicted on those who conspired against the country. If the leader of the rebellion goes free, how can those who acted under him as Commander-in-Chief be treated with greater rigor? A great reward was paid out of the public treasury for his capture, and he has lived in comfort for two years at the treasury's expense, all to no purpose. Being now permitted to go at large, he will never appear for trial, or, if he does, the trial will in all probability amount only to a perpetual extension of his freedom. At the South the spirit of the rebellion still survives in sufficient force to form a party with him at its head, and those second only to him in treason as his chief followers and the leaders of opinion. It would be among the least wonders of this farcical procedure if Jefferson Davis should be returned as United States Senator from Mississippi. His second in office, A. H. Stephens already holds that position in Georgia, and wherein do the two men differ in their relations to the law?

Mr. Greeley attempts to justify his eagerness in becoming surety for Davis by the wrong course of the government in postponing his trial so long and by the favor with which his release is received at the South. He says a million dollars' bail could have been obtained of men, every one of whom is able to lose the amount in case of forfeiture. These considerations do not reconcile the loyal people to the course of one from whom thousands of them have received their political instruction with a confidence rarely accorded to a journalist, and in whom they have been reluctant to abate their wonted trust. This fatal act of Mr. Greeley has added greatly to the influence which his course during the war has had to cause his opinions to be received with allowance.

The constant fear of loyal men has been, that affairs would take some steps so as to throw the leadership of Southern opinion into the hands of the influential rebels. Mr. Johnson has apparently cherished that idea as the foundation of his policy. The release of Mr. Davis and the consequent impunity of the remaining rebels is a long stride in that direction. Unrepentant and unpunished, they may be expected to be surrounded by their admirers as they return to their homes; and nothing but the opportune enactment of the Military Reconstruction Bill will save the country from again falling under their influence.

Correspondence from Kansas predicts a war of Indian extermination between the Platte and Arkansas Rivers. This news, though based on conclusions of General Hancock's recent pow wows, we have only to regret, and still may venture to doubt. There is no object to be gained by extermination, if anything less will serve. It may prove an endless business for small forces, as our Indian veterans well know; and it is a matter not worth boasting in advance, till we have fully calculated cost and possibility. As it is reckoned that every average we kill costs the nation about $100,000, the possibility does not seem to be inviting. The prospect of a short campaign to kill even one high-priced tribe of Indians cannot be regarded as a gain. Whether or not our Generals shall succeed in exterminating any considerable portion of the Indians, it must be admitted that the practical incapacity of our Government is put to a very high annual charge for their funeral—notwithstanding which the savages are anything but dead. Gen. Sherman is reported as saying, "We can have Indian war or not, as we choose." Let us choose not to have it.—Tribune.

Ex-Senator Foot of Mississippi publishes a long article in the Missouri Democrat in favor of woman's rights.

EXTRACT FROM BOOTH'S DIARY.—The following copy in pencil writing was found in the diary taken from J. Wilkes Booth:

"Tiamo, April 18 and 14. Friday the 14th. Until to-day nothing was ever thought of sacrificing to our country's wrongs. For six months we had worked to capture, but our powers being almost lost something decisive and great must be done. But it fell to me owing to others who did not strike for their country with heart. I struck boldly and not as the papers say. I walked with them through thousands of his friends and stopped, but, pushed on. A Colonel was at his side. I shouted at him before I fired. In jumping I broke my leg. I passed all his pickets and rode 60 miles that night with the bare of my leg tearing my flesh at every jump. I can never repeat it, though we hated to kill. Our country owed all its trouble to him, and had simply made the instrument of his punishment. The country is not what it was. This forced Union is not what I have ever loved. I care not what becomes of me. I have no desire to outlive my country. This night before the deed I wrote a long article and left it for one of the editors of the National Intelligencer in which I fully set forth our reasons for our proceedings. He or the Government—

Friday 21st. After being hunted like a dog through swamps, woods and last night being chased by gunboats until I was forced to return, we cold and starving, with every man's hand against me, I here in despair, and why? For doing what Brutus was denounced for; what made Tell a hero; and yet I, for striking down a greater tyrant than they ever knew, am looked upon as a common cut-throat. My action was praiseworthy either of these, viz: One helped to put the other had nearly ruined the country, but his own wrongs to avenge. I hoped for no gain. I had no private wrong. I struck for my country and that alone. A country that groined beneath this tyranny and prayed for this end; and yet, now, should the cold hand they extend to me. God cannot pardon me if I have done wrong. Yet I cannot see any wrong except in serving a degenerated people. The Union the very little I felt bound to clear my name, the Government will not allow to be tainted. So ends all.

For my country I have given up all that makes life sweet and holy, brought misery upon my family, and am sure there is no person in Heaven for since men condemn me so, I have only heard of what has been done, except what I did myself, and it fills me with horror. God try and forgive me and bless my mother.

To-night I will once more try the river with the intent to cross, through. I have a greater desire and almost a mind to return to Washington, and in a measure clear my name, which I feel I can do. I do not regret the blow I struck. I may before my God, but not to man. I think I have done well, though I am abandoned with the curse of Calum upon me, when, if the world knew my heart, that one blow would have made me great, although I did not desire greatness.

To-night I try to escape these blue-devils and ones more. Who, who can read his fate? God's will be done. I have too great a soul to die like a criminal. Oh my! He may spare me that, and let me die bravely. I bless the entire world. I have never hated or wronged any one. This fact was not a wrong unless God deems it so, and it is with Him to damn or bless me. And for this brave boy with me, who often prays, yes, before and since, with a true and sincere heart, was it crime in him? If so, why can he pray the same? I do not wish to shed a drop of blood, but I must fight the course. It is all that is left me."

Upon a piece of paper torn from the diary and supposed to have been torn from it is written the following: "My dear (please turn out) forgive me, but I have some little pride. I cannot blame you for want of hospitality. You know your own affairs. I was sick, tired, with a broken limb and in need of medical advice and I could not have turned a dog from my door in such a plight. However, you were kind enough to give me something to eat, for which I not only thank you, but on account of the rebuke and manner in which (please turn out) it is not the substance, but the way in which kindness is extended that makes me happy in the acceptance thereof. The saucer to meat is ceremony; eating was mine without it. Be kind enough to accept the enclosed five dollars although hard to spare for what we have received. Most respectfully, Your obedient servant."

Dr. Boyd, a gentleman who honorably aided in the escape of slaves, was sentenced for this offence to fifteen years in the prison of the District of Columbia, but was pardoned by Mr. Lincoln after having served eighteen months of the term. When Dr. Boyd lately applied for registry in Washington, he was refused, on the ground that no one could be registered who had been "convicted of an infamous offense." He appealed to the Supreme Court of the District, and it has promptly upset this atrociously absurd ruling. Judge Olin holds that the President's pardon restored Dr. Boyd to his political rights, and Judge Fisher that he has not committed an infamous crime. We are glad to think that by no accident could the District Judges have been induced to serve slavery after its death and burial.

The ENGLISH CHAMBERLAIN BOAT RACE came off on the 6th of May instant, at Newcastle upon Tyne. The start took place at the early hour of 5 A. M. but the number of spectators was unprecedented. The boating was even, and up to the time of the start, money was laid freely on Chambers. A beautiful start was effected. After the first one hundred yards Kelly crept to the front and made an effort to steer clear and take Chambers' water, in which he eventually succeeded, and went away with a fine sport up to the half distance. Although three lengths in advance he had not pulled so evenly or steadily as Chambers, but at that point he settled down, leaving Chambers still further in the rear, and went on easily at a great pace. He was never passed, and came in a winner by upward of one hundred yards, amid the cheers of his friends.

A Cleveland, Ohio, paper says that in a coal mine in Akten in that State a day or two since, a miner, having prepared a blast and set fire to the match, retired to an adjoining "room" for safety from the effects of the explosion. After waiting a reasonable time, and the blast seeming to "hold fire," he approached to a point where he could see what was going on. Just then the charge exploded, shooting the "priming rod," a piece of gas pipe, through the man's head. Strange to say, he was alive and answered some questions more than twenty-four hours after the occurrence.

A Woman's Suffrage Association has been organized in St. Louis, and active measures are to be taken to effect a revision of the constitution conferring the right of suffrage on women.

One of New York's most distinguished organists was found, the other morning, lying dead in the streets, and the remains were carried to the Morgue for identification, like those of any common worthless, brainless "loner." This was the end of genius!

The Memphis Bulletin asserts that the steamer which left Vicksburg with eighty tons of supplies to distribute gratuitously among people in districts along the river, was able to dispose of but two tons, the people saying they desired no assistance from the government.

A New York mechanic has invented some thing for horses for which he will probably be made an honorary member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It consists of a small reservoir, filled with water, placed upon the animal's head, keeping the brain cool, and thus warding off the effects of the heat and sunstroke.

A Paris letter says: "Of the great number of persons that attended the Paris Exhibition on Sunday week many were disappointed at finding all the cases in the English court covered up. One of the papers undertakes to explain this circumstance to its readers: 'It must not be forgotten that the English report, absolutely, on the Sunday.'"

The Auburn Advertiser says that twenty-three years ago, Secretary Seward had the honor of fixing names to a triplet of girl babies, children of Mrs. Andrew Walsh, of Jefferson County. Two of these daughters still live. Last Christmas one of them wrote him a letter, reminding him of the pleasant little episode, which it seems she had not forgotten. The Secretary replied kindly, and a few days ago sent the young ladies each a Bible and a five-cent United States Bond of $50.

Court of Common Pleas.

May Term, 1867. TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

The Court met at 3 o'clock. A petit jury having been called, the case of Wm. G. Peckham vs. Henry N. Ward, was opened for trial.

This is an action brought by the plaintiff to recover damages for an alleged trespass committed by the defendant while acting, by order of the City Council, in his capacity as City Sergeant.

Mr. Peckham is the owner of Commercial Wharf, and while using that wharf as a dealer in coal and wood, he also made use of a dock at the South of his own wharf, which the city set up a claim to as a part, or continuation of Franklin street, and hence a public highway of which the freehold was vested in the city. On this disputed territory, Mr. Peckham, at the time that the cause of the present action occurred, had a building some 60 feet long, and a shed, used for storage purposes, and some 60 cords of wood, and Mr. Ward, as City Sergeant, in September, 1861, by direction of the Council and the then Mayor and Solicitor, Mr. Cranston, went on the premises, removed the larger building, took down the shed and removed the wood, as the plaintiff alleges to his damage—the property removed being placed on a part of the wharf extensively used for business and commercial purposes which was thus greatly lost and hindered.

Previous to this time there had been some controversy between the city and Mr. Peckham in regard to this property, and Mr. Peckham, to avoid trouble, leased it of the city, in 1854, and paid one year's rent. Subsequent to that time he offered to re-lease or purchase the property, but intimated at the same time that he doubted the validity of the city's claim to the title of the terra vacua. This originated the controversy which culminated, at last, in the ejectment, in manner and form as before stated, of Mr. Peckham, by the City Sergeant.

Wm. P. Sheffield, Esq., in opening the case to the jury stated that Mr. Peckham claimed the land as a piece of made land—made by himself, and that if the freehold was not his, he was in peaceable occupation and possession into which he had come by virtue of a lease from the city, and that the city or any other party had any right to eject him in so summary a manner and in the absence of all due process of law.

Gen. Van Zandt in opening the case for the city, raised the point that the city were the rightful owners of the freehold, and that for the purposes of this trial, (and in this he was sustained by the ruling of the Court,) the fact of Mr. Peckham's leasing the land from the city and paying rent therefor, was a virtual admission of the city's title. That when Mr. Peckham, as tenant, raised a doubt in regard to the title of the city, his landlord, he became a trespasser and the city had a right to dispossess him, using only such force as was absolutely required for that purpose.

After the opening of this case, the Grand Jury came into Court and returned six true bills of indictment which were disposed as follows:

State vs. —, for assault and battery with a dangerous weapon. Capias to issue.

State vs. Emanuel Solza. This respondent is a young Portuguese and resided in Little Compton, and he was indicted for secreting himself in the house of another Portuguese residing there, and stealing twenty-five dollars from the premises. Young Solza was not arraigned on the indictment against him, as Attorney General Rogers said that he was not able to understand a word of it, and he was remanded to jail to await further proceedings in the matter.

State vs. James W. Demond, alias James W. Perkins, colored. This indictment was found upon a complaint for stealing a large amount of goods at various times, from the store of Wm. G. Cozzens & Co., in which he was employed as porter. Demond was arraigned, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three years in the State's Prison.

State vs. Prudence Simpson, (colored), for receiving the goods stolen by Demond, knowing them to be stolen.

State vs. Frances Johnson and Elizabeth Johnson (alias Perry) for receiving stolen goods knowing them to be stolen. These two girls, (colored), are daughters of Wm. Henry Johnson of New Bedford, a colored lawyer. They were arraigned and pleaded not guilty and Mr. Johnson, their father who was present, entered an appearance for their counsel.

State vs. John Green. This was for theft of money from Frank E. Brown. Green was arraigned, pleaded not guilty and Mr. Sheffield was announced as his counsel.

The criminal docket was assigned for trial to-morrow (Thursday) morning.

The testimony for both sides, in the case, Wm. G. Peckham vs. Henry N. Ward, was then heard and the arguments of counsel made to the jury, when the court adjourned until this morning at nine o'clock.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

The Court met this morning at 9 o'clock, when the Judge, proceeded at once to charge the jury in the case of Wm. G. Peckham vs. Henry N. Ward. The jury retired with the charge at half past 9 o'clock, and after an absence of five minutes, returned into the Court and rendered a verdict for the plaintiff, assessing damages for him in the sum of $30, this being the full sum paid in the plaintiff's declaration.

The case of Peckham vs. Ward, is now on the part of the defendant by Francis H. Peckham, Jr., Esq., who stated that the defendant was the owner of the wharf known as Commercial wharf, in this city, and that on or about the 4th of July last, the schooner Benjamin B. arrived from the coast of Georgia, and on the 5th of July, the wharf, came in for the purpose of unloading—last to a derelict on the defendant's wharf, which was for the defendant's use in unloading vessels on his own wharf.

—that defendant protested against this and directed attention to a post on the wharf to which he was willing the plaintiff should make fast—that after the plaintiff had made his vessel fast to the defendant's derrick three times, a gang of eight men ready to leave it with a willow as on board the plaintiff's vessel for the purpose of hauling the vessel to, which at the time was grounded, the defendant did cut the plaintiff's hawser with an axe, in order to prevent injury to his derrick which was, at the time, about to use for unloading a vessel of coal for his own use at yard. These facts were substantially proved by the testimony on the part of the defendant.

The case was opened on the part of the plaintiff by Wm. P. Sheffield, Esq., who stated that according to law and usage in such a case the owner of a wharf was obligated to keep suitable accommodations, for vessels coming in to make fast to, upon the payment of reasonable compensation as wharfage during their said occupancy of the wharf—that in the present case, no such accommodations being provided by the defendant, the plaintiff had a right to make fast to such accommodations as he could find; that the defendant had no right to cut the plaintiff's hawser and was liable for whatever damages may have accrued to the plaintiff, by the act of the defendant.

Testimony was put in on the part of the plaintiff, to prove the facts upon which these allegations were founded.

Wm. A. White, Esq., is associated with Mr. Sheffield, as counsel for plaintiff. Still pending as we go to press.

The following cases were disposed of yesterday the second day of the term:—

Continued:—Joseph H. Record vs. Thomas Read; Sestak & Quinn vs. Thomas Read; Samuel G. Howe vs. Albert Cornell; Joseph Bradford vs. B. J. F. Clark, death of defendant suggested and administrator to be appointed.

J. H. H. Crosby Jr. vs. Ber. E. Clark—same suit.

The following cases were settled:—

Abner Case, Appellant, vs. School Committee of Little Compton; Daniel O'Neil vs. Maria T. H. Moore; Joseph R. Koch vs. the same; and Thomas Lyons vs. the same; Geo. Clendenen vs. Geo. T. Downing, Appellant.

Michael O'Leary vs. W. T. Hall—21 day, leave to answer granted.

Geo. W. Hodge vs. Eliza W. Dean—21 day, notice waived, leave to answer granted and continued.

That Ox.—Mine Host of the Atlantic House W. W. Hazard, Esq., was the purchaser of half the Illinois ox mentioned in our columns, yesterday, and will serve it up in roast steak, &c., at his dinner table on Election day. Messrs. Slocom and Black purchased the remainder.

The animal is called Barnside, and when alive he weighed 2500 pounds. Dead, his weight was 1631; Hide, 170; Tallow, 146.

MILITARY.—The drill and parade of the Newport Artillery and Aquidneck Rifles, last evening, was a very imposing display and evidenced a very commendable degree of proficiency on the part of both companies.

ALARM OF FIRE.—The alarm of fire about half-past 9 o'clock, last evening, was without any apparent cause except the desire of some person or persons unknown to make a stir among the firemen and citizens.

FROM MEXICO.

New York, May 21.—Matamoros (Mexico) correspondence, dated May 10, says a series of important battles have taken place in front of Queretaro. The Liberal force besieging the town is estimated at from 20,000 to 25,000 men. Juarez has leveled a pretensions to the amount of $2,000,000. Immediately after the receipt of Secretary Seward's letter he issued orders in reference to the treaty of Matamoros, saying his life should be spared, and as it was feared Juarez would have the unfortunate Prince assassinated, notwithstanding orders to the contrary, that General was sent to command an expedition against Juarez, who had rebelled in the North—Juarez, who is said to be the best of the Mexican Generals, was appointed to succeed him, and now commands all the armies of the Republic. An Imperial reconquering party, including one of Maximilian's adjutants, have been captured and shot.
